Introduction to Tarot

The Japanese tarotist Lua mentioned that tarot is by no means a magical device. While a mystical image is drawn on each card, you will not face a curse if you don't act according to what the card says. The cards are simply a tool that provides you with an opportunity to look deep inside yourself as a method to figure out the road you wish to take.

No matter what card is drawn, it is you who ultimately decides your fate. As long as you keep this in mind, tarot will become a mirror to your inner self and a reliable friend with whom you can confide in your concerns.

About the Wandering Spirit Tarot Deck

The girl and skeleton featured in this tarot deck were created in the depths of depression and born out of tragedy.

It's hard when a friend dies, especially young, but when three of my closest friends died within a month I didn't know how to handle anything. It was grief compounded with grief and death was taking everyone important to me.

So I escaped into the world I know best; art. We all need to deal with death throughout our lives, and artwork dealing with the subject is filled with messages and metaphors, some different and some overlapping. This was the key to releasing the shadow that was constantly over me. So I sketched, drew, and uploaded the images to Facebook. That's when I learned there are countless other people with their own stories of pain and loss, who were searching for their own freedom as well. The purpose of the images was a way for me to grapple with my own loss but it somehow connected with others as well, including those who looked fine on the outside but had emptiness inside.

So I kept making these images. I shared the art online and watched it spread. Before long I had enough to make a graphic novel and then it became the most popular dress design I've ever made. I didn't like to offer the same dress designs again, but this one I had to. Even the darkness can provide comfort.

The girl and skeleton present the message that life and depression can peacefully coexist and sometimes our sadness can comfort us. And while we can feel alone in our depression, we are never fully alone. Once these two were released into the world, and others saw how they comforted and guided each other, people repeatedly asked me the same question, "Why don't you extend these characters into tarot?"

This deck is the result of that question, which has rolled around in my mind for years; slowly taking shape and form. This tarot deck consists of 82 cards, which are the standard 22 Major Arcana and 56 Minor Arcana while also including 4 bonus cards.

This deck would never have been possible without the support and backing of everyone in the Kickstarter campaign. I can never thank you enough.

I hope this deck inspires you, helps you through your hard times, and gives you direction when you feel lost. May the pain of the past transform into something of beauty in the future.

Spreads

There are several different ways to spread the cards and with practice you'll see what works best for you. This deck includes several bonus cards as stretch goals from the Kickstarter campaign. These are optional and don't need to be included if you don't want to use them.

Before you begin, make sure you shuffle the cards. The person giving the reading or the person seeking (known as the querent) can shuffle. After shuffling, focus on what is the question that will be asked. Make sure this is clear in your mind and not a vague concept. Once that is done, cards can be drawn and spread either face up or face down.

Single-card Draw

This is best for simpler questions; ask a question, draw a card, consider the relationship to the question. It is more common to draw several cards, as we'll see in a minute, as their combination can give better understanding. But a single card is useful as well and is a good method for getting more acquainted with the deck.

Three-card Spread

This spread has three cards, laid side by side, with the left card showing the past, the middle showing the present, and the right showing the future. Cards can be read in any order.

The past symbolizes the querent's relevant past in relation to the question, so this can be the recent past or anywhere to the distant past. The present shows the current situation. Despite what some people think, the future is not set in stone and the querent can impact what will happen through their thoughts and actions.

Past

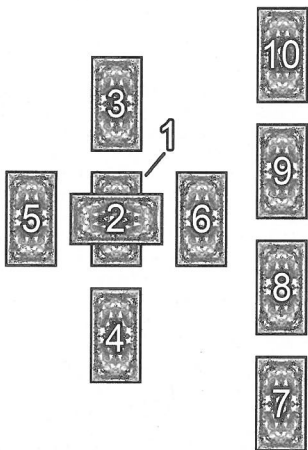

Present

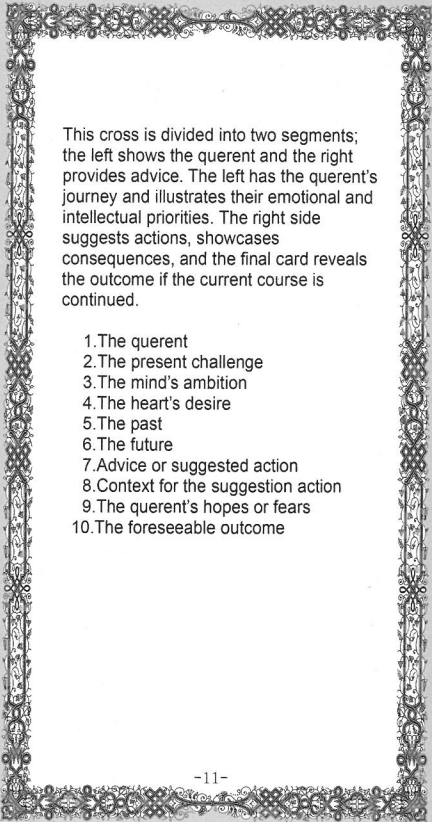

Future

The Celtic Cross

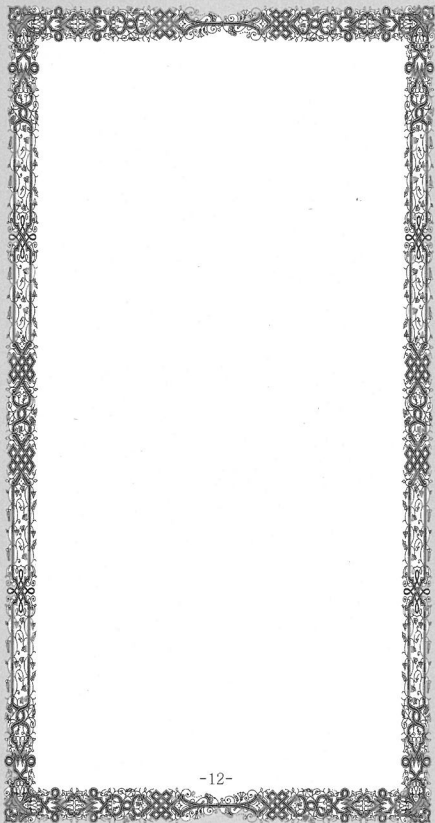

While this looks the most complex, it is the most common and rather intuitive. This spread is more effective with those who are more familiar with their deck and the relationship between the cards.

This cross is divided into two segments; the left shows the querent and the right provides advice. The left has the querent's journey and illustrates their emotional and intellectual priorities. The right side suggests actions, showcases consequences, and the final card reveals the outcome if the current course is continued.

1. The querent
2. The present challenge
3. The mind's ambition
4. The heart's desire
5. The past
6. The future
7. Advice or suggested action
8. Context for the suggestion action
9. The querent's hopes or fears
10. The foreseeable outcome

Major Arcana

0. The Fool

Upright:

Can't see their hand in front of their face. They live the life they want with pure values not bound by stereotypes, common sense, or other people's ideas of what they should do. As a result, unexpected opportunities may occur or novel ideas may arise.

Reverse:

It is easy to get swept away as nothing is solid. There is frustration as nothing has been decided. Life can be lonely as they wander aimlessly. It is difficult to gain trust from those around them because they give off a free-spirited vibe, therefore it is important to properly maintain social relationships.

1. The Magician

Upright:

Do as you wish. This person has a clear sense of purpose about what they want to do. They have strong self-confidence that attracts others. Their thoughts are organized and this person is very persuasive.

Reverse:

Avoid difficult work. There is hesitation in continuing in this direction. This person may need more convincing and as such will act or react very differently than others expect. This person might stay at this level as they are using their talents to deceive people.

2. The High Priestess

Upright:

This person looks at things with intelligence and reason. They take problems seriously with innate intelligence and reason. There is no ambiguity and no dishonesty. They have a clear mind and don't make one-sided decisions. As they are delicate, they are easily hurt.

Reverse:

They only see what they want to see. There is plenty of innocence and perfectionism. Untimely or ambiguous information is disregarded. At times they look at reality with a stern eye. Be careful about directing this gaze to others as they will be critical of your words and actions.

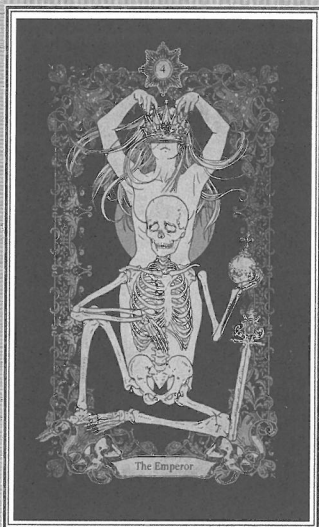

3. The Empress

Upright:

Enjoy your fill of abundant fruit and riches. While beauty fascinates others, this person either readily enjoys both beauty and love or such change is in their future.

Reverse:

Overflowing grace can be tiresome. The surrounding abundance can be excessive at times. As time goes by, it is easy to stop being thankful. Life feels like it passes slowly and isn't fun like it used to be. Or, this person feels incomplete, wanting more, in a state of longing.

4. The Emperor

Upright:

Persistent stability. This person brings stability to the community through their efforts and can lead people to function as a group. Their efforts lead to a strengthened and grateful community.

Reverse:

This is a situation where stability is obtained through strength. Much like a boss oppressing those under them with force, things are done arbitrarily or people are treated unfairly. This person can put the community at risk with a poorly designed plan. This can lead to superficial relationships and a gradual loss of trust.

The Hierophant

5. The Hierophant

Upright:

Building trust and bonds based on morality. Personal peace can be maintained by observing social norms. Strong bonds are created through relationships with respect, acceptance, and trust. This also indicates spiritual growth or an encounter with a significant individual.

Reverse:

Confronting morality using trust and bonds. This person does not comply with or abuses social norms. Hypocritical behavior leads to immorality. Don't forget that this kind of behavior has consequences.

6. The Lovers

Upright:

Feelings of happiness in a dreamlike state. This person is helplessly fascinated by something and surrenders themselves to pleasure. They need to both choose their future actions just as they select the forbidden fruit.

Reverse:

Enjoying current happiness. This person surrenders themselves to pleasure and indulges in momentary happiness. It is necessary to check if they have the ability to face consequences and if they are living appropriately. One of the pleasures is avoiding responsibility.

The Chariot

7. The Chariot

Upright:

Dare to challenge everything. This person has fierce momentum and will not hesitate to jump into something unknown as their mind is set. Due to their high aggressive energy, they can achieve their goals or overcome difficulties and press on.

Reverse:

Self-restraint is impossible. This person is in a state where they can run rampant. Much like an out of control tank, they leap before they look and sometimes plow into obstacles or problems. The key is to have the ability to stop, think, and change their mind.

Strength

8. Strength

Upright:

Overcoming difficulties. This person can build relationships with all their heart. To start this, they need to say something from the heart or prove they are not an enemy. With some effort, this person can get out of tense situations.

Reverse:

Cannot handle the issues they face and walk away. Unable to continue, this person runs from their problem. At other times, this person takes advantage of others or is abusive. If a lion sees an impure intention, it will attack. Be careful.

The Hermit

9. The Hermit

Upright:

Seeking more. This person looks deep inside themselves by calming their mind. Once obtaining this knowledge, this person is regarded as deeply knowledgeable, is respected by those around them, and becomes a leader.

Reverse:

Cannot face reality. This person is stuck in good times of the past or refuses to accept their current situation and runs away. Their stubbornness closes their mind and protects themselves by saying they are on a higher plane or no one really understands them. They must be careful not to seclude themselves.

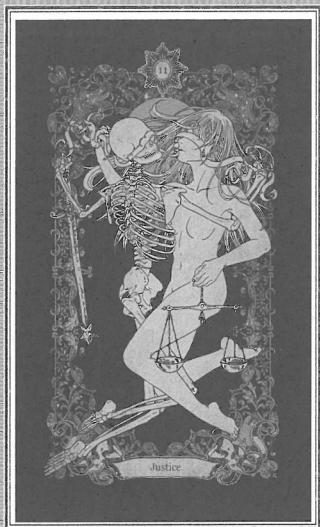

10. Wheel of Fortune

Upright:

Fate will make things better. An unexpected opportunity arrives and things slowly unfold. This opportunity will not wait for you to catch up, so you need to be on the lookout. This card also suggests significant fate-related occurrences, such as love at first sight or a whirlwind marriage.

Reverse:

Getting caught up in destiny. The wheel turns but no luck follows. This person either fails to achieve the results they strive for or miss a long awaited opportunity. Changing course feels inevitable and only finds exhaustion. Be careful with the situation and protect yourself from getting hurt further.

11. Justice

Upright:

A calm response without emotions. This person is fair in everything. Facts are reasonable and correctly assessed. They show a willingness to set aside emotions and make objective judgements.

Reverse:

An unreasonable response that is influenced by emotions. This person makes decisions based on relationships or emotions. There might be a unique situation that doesn't comply with social norms. In some cases, they are being treated unfairly or are in an unethical situation.

The Hanged Man

12. The Hanged Man

Upright:

Face the current situation with calm and serenity. Acknowledge reality is not what was expected and quietly reflect. Doing this brings a calm mind, the removal of anxiety and fear, and a clear grasping of the situation. This person can grasp a new interpretation through waiting like a larva waiting to be born.

Reverse:

Refusal to face reality results in struggle. This person faces something that binds them yet they refuse to admit it. The more they fight it, the more impatient they are, the more it is going to hurt. They must first stare reality in the face. After accepting the coming hardships, their view on the world will change.

13. Death

Upright:

Take the next step. Accept the difficulties that Death brings. Shock, heartbreaking sadness, and loneliness will follow, but only in this place can this person find a new side of themselves. If this card has been pulled, hasn't fate already been determined?

Reverse:

Stuck in the past. Whatever happens, this person will only face stagnation and difficulty. The beginning and end that Death brings is already set and nearly impossible to change. It is time to get up and move on.

Temperance

14. Temperance

Upright:

Accept new things. This person is willing to be influenced by others. Even if opinions or values are different, they are open-minded and understand each other. Despite being influenced, don't forget to assert your views through discussion in order to balance things.

Reverse:

Rejecting something foreign. By not accepting other opinions or thoughts, a certain purity is achieved yet this leads to conflict. This person must remember they can be influenced by others.

The Devil

15. The Devil

Upright:

Defeat comes from within the heart. This card suggests being swept away by temptation. A loss of control leads to endless lusting and a stronger attachment.

Reverse:

Fight the Devil within. Cut off the hedonistic relationship that was believed to be impossible to escape from. Alternatively, make regular improvements to life in general. Neither of these are easy to accomplish as the lust runs deep.

The Tower

16. The Tower

Upright:

Sudden shock. It feels like the heavens have broken open. The unexpected occurs and brings confusion. The fallout and problems are resolved by taking this opportunity. The shock is power, yet it passes quickly and provides relief once it is gone.

Reverse:

A gradual shock. The initial damage appears minimal, yet rot and decay have set in. Some people struggle as a sense of urgency lasts for a long period of time. This card can also indicate the need to embrace the pain to let growth occur. It must be handled sooner or later.

17. The Star

Upright:

A bright future awaits. Hope is shining upon your head, providing proof you are on the right path to your goal. Clear water means purification with unsparing love. The condition of the body and mind is very good.

Reverse:

It yields no results and disappears. For some reason, hope turns into disappointment and lofty goals turn into illusions. This represents a situation where everything recklessly ends. Just as water flows, it will dry up.

18. The Moon

Upright:

Seeing reality through fantasy. The world reflected in moonlight is hiding something important. Despite being called moonlight, the Moon does not provide the light, which comes from the Sun. This person looks outwards and has feelings of anxiousness which are projected from within coming from lies, secrets, and anxiety.

Reverse:

Reality gradually comes to light. As dawn approaches, the moonlight fades. The illusion, which felt clear as day, disappears and reality is finally visible. Frustration and anxiety fade away. It feels like waking from a dream and looking around with open eyes.

19. The Sun

Upright:

Gain the fruits of your efforts. This person can gradually move forward towards what they truly want. As they learn to live with this joy, they will reap the rewards.

Reverse:

Cannot see the light. This card implies a lack of light which leads to a lack of growth and maturity. However, the Sun will rise again, so the opportunity for a new start will come again in the future.

20. Judgment

Upright:

Quickly seize the opportunity. This person will get their chance. It is time to release cherished things of the past. As these objects, ideas, or mindsets are removed, a resurrection can provide a turning point.

Reverse:

Pause and delay. A long awaited opportunity has been missed. Sometimes we lack the courage to pursue or we hesitate and miss the timing. As a result, the thoughts, plans, or relationships we wish to revive are again closed off and put on hold.

21. The World

Upright:

Achieve goals and be satisfied. There is joy and satisfaction in reaching the goal. Yet while this is a brilliant completion, it might just be a stepping stone to something greater. But before journeying on to bigger and better, take a moment to enjoy.

Reverse:

Withdrawn and unsatisfactory results. Although it is partially completed, the result is different from what was expected. Perhaps the end was rushed. This person must decide whether to give up and walk away, or aim higher.

Minor Arcana

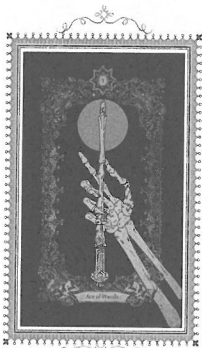

Ace of Wands

Upright:

A new challenge begins. Strength increases. This person has a new goal or a desire to grow themselves.

Reverse:

One challenge is over. Motivation is low and something is coming to an end. Conversely, this also represents a state of runaway power.

Two of Wands

Upright:

Goals have been achieved and confidence is high. This person feels rewarded for their achievements and growth. Using that confidence as a stepping stone, ambition grows to go higher.

Reverse:

What has been gained might be lost. Expect to lose what has been developed. Alternatively, the results of your efforts may fade.

Three of Wands

Upright:

Look for opportunities to be challenged. Try and move on to the next step. With some focus, your resolve will only be strengthened. The time to dream is right around the corner.

Reverse:

Expectations are in vain. While the body and mind are fully prepared, the decision cannot be made and cannot be put into action. Waiting for news that will not come.

Four of Wands

Upright:

Obtain real joy. It's time to get up and get out. Peace and freedom can be achieved with the realization of what you really want.

Reverse:

Find joy in the present situation. Instead of trying to get something new, find joy in the current environment. This can also mean to be passive.

Five of Wands

Upright:

Go forward into the struggle. Spirits are high but there are no negative feelings. The goal can be reached through pushing forward.

Reverse:

Overpower the opponent. This person has prepared for battle and is ready to destroy the opponent. By relentlessly fighting, victory is achieved by wearing them down.

Six of Wands

Upright:

Have pride in yourself. This person can be genuinely happy with the approval of those around them. They are proud of themselves for safely completing the work and have a slight sense of superiority.

Reverse:

Dissatisfaction with unfair results. "It could have been better." Despite receiving praise from others around them, this person is frustrated and cannot celebrate.

Seven of Wands

Upright:

Achieve victory from an advantageous position. Being in this position provides control over the situation. Luck feels like it is flowing and everything feels like it is going your way.

Reverse:

It is difficult to avoid bad situations. It feels like you are in a difficult situation. There seems to be no victory in this overwhelmingly unfavorable struggle. This can also indicate a lot of struggle within your mind.

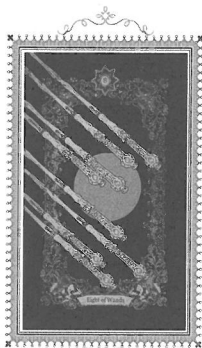

Eight of Wands

Upright:

Go at a fast pace. Begin with haste. Things change rapidly at a speed truly unexpected. This also hints at an expected event which is about to happen.

Reverse:

Run into unexpected difficulties. While things have been running smoothly, they suddenly stopped progressing. These unexpected problems result in feeling anxiousness and frustration.

Nine of Wands

Upright:

Prepare a plan. This person is able to cope with any situation. Diligently prepare and don't let your guard down. There is tension in the body and mind.

Reverse:

Being conceited brings pain. Things are too difficult. Confusion comes from not coping with the real situation. This person does not truly know themselves which leads to confusion. This might also signal a warning as they don't know something about themselves.

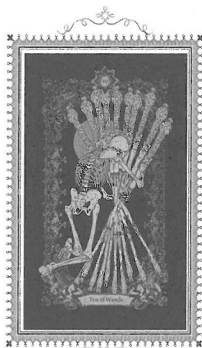

Ten of Wands

Upright:

Both hands are full while dealing with the self-imposed burden. Even at times of exhaustion, this person cannot unload this weight. The card represents a state of feeling chased and they are fully responsible for it.

Reverse:

Let go of the burden. A limit has been reached. This person desires to be released of their burden and be free. The card can also imply irresponsibility with giving up work.

Page of Wands

Upright:

Confidence in the future, burning enthusiasm. This person looks into the future with pure and innocent eyes. Be true to your desires and be honest. Proceed toward your dream.

Reverse:

The heart shouts out. This person speaks of hope but finds resistance and is capricious. They are blind to this, make the wrong decisions, and go against others.

Knight of Wands

Upright:

Setting off to a new world. This person is excited for a new beginning. The card implies they will take action both full of enthusiasm and ready for a challenge.

Reverse:

The mind cannot keep up with changes. This person is in a state of dismay due to unexpected changes. They fight the change and become frustrated and aggressive.

Queen of Wands

Upright:

Attract those around you and become the focus of attention. This person feels relaxed and desires to be kind to others.

Reverse:

Laziness leads to misunderstanding. This person misapplies what they were taught. Jealousy and misunderstandings are possible.

King of Wands

Upright:

Have faith to continue to the end. The whole body is filled with strength. This person makes those around them join their side. No matter how difficult things are, they will achieve positive results.

Reverse:

Force breeds control. The strong will to achieve things can spark criticism. This person has excessive excitement and lacks normal judgement.

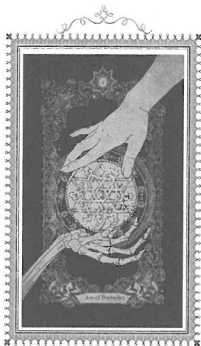

Ace of Pentacles

Upright:

Using abilities to achieve abundance. This person clearly has the ability to get what they want and have been recognized for their efforts thus far. There is a possibility of gaining wealth or fame.

Reverse:

While profits are the priority, efforts are in vain. This person pursues profit and yet engages in inappropriate behavior. Alternatively, they may destroy precious long-standing relationships.

Two of Pentacles

Upright:

Recognize the situation and act appropriately. Appropriately respond to what is unfolding in front of you. Things will then start to flow smoothly and at a good rate.

Reverse:

Suffering due to an inability to respond to the situation. This person is unable to cope with changes and is troubled. This can also indicate a state of insecurity and awkwardly standing out.

Three of Pentacles

Upright:

Recognition for honed skills. The hard work completed so far is recognized by others. Invisible talents are noticed on occasion.

Reverse:

Ability is not recognized. Although this person has skills, they are hardly appreciated by those around them. Alternatively, this can indicate a lack of competence.

Four of Pentacles

Upright:

Prioritize certain interests. Be careful of failure. This person is diligent, but has a tendency to become obsessed with the material world in front of them.

Reverse:

Indulgence leads to loss of self. This person may be messing up by prioritizing only their own personal interests. They also can be reluctant to pay.

Five of Pentacles

Upright:

The harsh environment brings mental devastation. The situation is worsening, much like a worker in isolation. Morale is low. There is a feeling of desperation and they are in desperate need of help.

Reverse:

Get help to regain hope. The negative situation gradually improves. If this person receives a helping hand, they are refreshed and their mood elated.

Six of Pentacles

Upright:

The relationship between the giver and the recipient. The thought of wanting to help someone else is rather low. Maybe the other person is expecting something to happen.

Reverse:

The relationship between the dominant and the subjugated. The desire to dominate the opponent is revealed. There are times this person wishes to constrict someone they like.

Seven of Pentacles

Upright:

Significantly improve the problem. A re-examination is necessary. If improvements are found, such as methods, plans or ideas, then the next step is needed.

Reverse:

Living with insecurity and an aimless life. This person might be underestimating themselves. Or they approach things with an unclear mind and interpret it as a lack of effort.

Eight of Pentacles

Upright:

Concentrating on the task ahead. This person's concentration has improved. If they keep working toward their goal, they will learn certain skills and be another step closer to success.

Reverse:

Difficulty concentrating on the task ahead. Due to various obstacles, concentration is broken by distractions. They pretend to be sincere, but may be acting.

Nine of Pentacles

Upright:

Achieve success by being better than others and with extraordinary abilities. Compensation will follow, such as gaining a new position or ability.

Reverse:

Aim for success through lies and deceit. This person seeks success with fraud and lies. As a result, there is a possibility of being isolated from those around them.

Ten of Pentacles

Upright:

Prosper through inheritance and have stability. Success is achieved by inheriting and increasing wealth or by using skills inherited from someone else.

Reverse:

The end of inheritance. Either what has been inherited has not been utilized, causes turmoil, or becomes a bad legacy.

Page of Pentacles

Upright:

Take time to build. Immerse yourself. This card suggests that time spent now will greatly help in the future.

Reverse:

Time is being wasted. This person is wasting time unnecessarily.

Knight of Pentacles

Upright:

Making it all the way to the end. This person can finish what they are currently working on. This will require patience and responsibility.

Reverse:

It concludes yet nothing has changed. Positive change seldom occurs due to an excessive desire to protect what they have. What they are doing now is getting slowed down to a state of merely existing.

Queen of Pentacles

Upright:

Growing something grows yourself. This person is happy working for others. This results in a positive effect not only on others, but on themself, which results in strength.

Reverse:

They ruin each other by being overly lenient. Taking on anything is counterproductive. While one is working, the other becomes dependent and corrupts the other.

King of Pentacles

Upright:

Demonstrating abilities. This person desires to help others with their own strength; something they can do. This could also indicate being in a similar situation.

Reverse:

Not exercising their power. This person cannot fully use their abilities. They cannot use their money nor abilities properly. As such, they fall short of the expectations around them.

Ace of Swords

Upright:

Paving a new path. Rearing to try something new. This shows a willingness to actively pursue things they have never done before.

Reverse:

Compulsive actions lead to destruction. This person acts with their own interests without considering their own flaws. They can go in the wrong direction and eventually bring ruin to themselves.

Two of Swords

Upright:

Maintain harmony with a gentle mind. This person maintains the status quo. They avoid unreasonable conclusions with the problems that face them. If they are careful with timing, they can gain more internal peace.

Reverse:

Temporary measures. Dealing with a problem through a temporary measure without fully grasping the essence of the problem leads to a chance of failure. Problems that seemed to be finished may return.

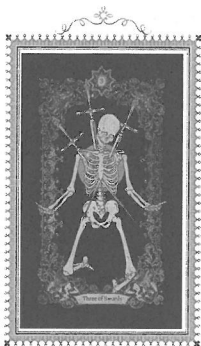

Three of Swords

Upright:

Accept the main point. This person understands the truth that they didn't want to know and the situation went against their expectation. Try to keep going despite the despair.

Reverse:

Rejection of truth and suffer from impatience. They are in a state of confusion due to a shocking incident. There is a possibility that the pain will continue because they cannot accept the reality in front of them.

Four of Swords

Upright:

Quietly rest and be prepared. Things slow down as rest sets in. Use this time to ponder.

Reverse:

Rest time is over. It is time to wake up and start moving.

Five of Swords

Upright:

Taking by any means necessary. This person has a desire to achieve their ends by any means available to them.

Reverse:

Loss of something heavy. This person has lost something valuable due to something unexpected or a trap. The reason could be due to a loss of ability or carelessness.

Six of Swords

Upright:

Escape from a difficult situation. This person is slowly getting out of a difficult situation. A ship is a related symbol as it indicates movement and could show travel or a move.

Reverse:

In trouble yet again. This card shows the person is unable to exit a difficult situation or is re-entering an environment they thought they were out of.

Seven of Swords

Upright:

Making a plan from behind. Without anyone knowing, this person is plotting. They evade responsibility and are quick to protect themselves. This card indicates a state of taking risks.

Reverse:

Detect danger and take precautions. This person noticed someone's malice and prepared with vigilance. Thanks to the measures taken, the work proceeds safely.

Eight of Swords

Upright:

Waiting for help in trying situations. Lacking strength, this person has a hidden desire to be assisted or saved. Engulfed in both innocence and loneliness, they cannot budge or take a single step.

Reverse:

A pounding heart in the absence of help. This person feels anxious about their isolation. Harm is deeply connected with them, such as in resisting the current situation and blaming those around them.

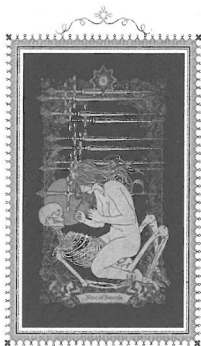

Nine of Swords

Upright:

Cannot turn back and feel desperate. There is deep regret with the thought of "If only I had done..." They blame themselves for limiting their actions to mere thoughts, which blinds them to their surroundings.

Reverse:

Trying to avoid facing bad situations. This person ignores reality and does not delve into the essence of the problem. They blame others, wish they acted differently, or punish themselves.

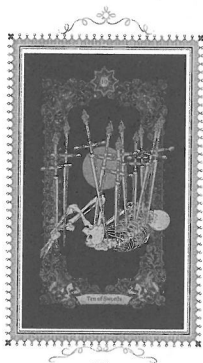

Ten of Swords

Upright:

Accept everything and move on. This person is in a state of accepting everything, including their own weaknesses and circumstances. This can be seen as enlightenment. As such, it is time to take the next step.

Reverse:

See only what you want to see. The mind was not prepared to face something disadvantageous. As a result, they are still unable to escape from their own delusions.

Page of Swords

Upright:

Assess the situation and act cautiously. Hold your breath and look around yourself. This also indicates a situation in which work must be conducted in secret. The situation feels very critical.

Reverse:

Lack of caution. Despite there being a sense of vigilance, the lack of caution is significant. They lose what is valuable to them by an accident, a careless remark, or neglect.

Knight of Swords

Upright:

Make the logical decision and move forward. Reduce waste and rush towards the goal via the shortest route. This person makes rational decisions, so they are not swayed by emotions.

Reverse:

Futile strife. It is more a provocation but less than a full attack. Regardless, it causes unnecessary trouble. This person is impatient in their desire to succeed.

Queen of Swords

Upright:

Respect for correct words and deeds. Without hesitation, this person insists they must do something. It is not self-righteousness of themselves or of others, but a careful statement made after considering how to gain consent from those around them.

Reverse:

Armed for self-defense. This person uses their sharp intellect to protect themselves. Enemies will attack relentlessly and yet only hurt themselves. This person is cold toward the feelings of others.

King of Swords

Upright:

Judgement made from objective analysis. This person makes objective and accurate judgements in all situations. They avoid self-interest in their attempts to be fair.

Reverse:

A dictator maintains dignity. They use their knowledge to protect themselves. If others do not follow their will, they are cruelly excluded. Mistakes are not admitted.

Ace of Cups

Upright:

Overflowing with love and hope. This person has a full spirit and is overflowing with joy and happiness. This is also a sign of happiness.

Reverse:

Falling into disappointment. They don't feel loved and only feel lost. This can also indicate disappointment or instability in their soul as they did not achieve what they wanted.

Two of Cups

Upright:

Build a trusting relationship. It is time to share your feelings with those around you and collaborate towards your goal. Realize the importance of human relationships and build partnerships.

Reverse:

The heart is closing. This person cannot open their heart because of distrust. It can also indicate a state of obsession with one object or person. Their thoughts are off balance.

Three of Cups

Upright:

Share joy together. Success comes with working with colleagues. As a sense of solidarity develops into a relationship, there is a desire to toast in celebration.

Reverse:

Falling into laziness. A hedonistic and inertia-filled life with colleagues. This implies the wasting of time through meaningless conversations or actions.

Four of Cups

Upright:

Dissatisfaction and torment. This person doubts themselves with thoughts of "is it okay to be like this?" They are hesitant as there is no future prospect.

Reverse:

Finding a way through grievances. In a state of struggling with their worries, this person changes focus and finds a solution. It is time to shift behavior or thinking.

Five of Cups

Upright:

Deepening regret in sorrow over loss. They are suffering from a great sense of loss and focus on that loss. It also hints at a situation where they cannot see reality as they are immersed in grief.

Reverse:

Recovery brings a new state. They begin to move anew based on what was left behind and the knowledge of what caused the loss. Because of adversity, their insight is sharp.

Six of Cups

Upright:

Full of longing. Recalling the past and soaking up nostalgia. Warm and happy memories fill the heart. It also suggests returning to a child-like heart and attempts to heal the mind.

Reverse:

Cannot go beyond past memories. Either trauma of the past or focusing on the glory years prevents this person from moving forward. They must rid themselves of this dependence.

Seven of Cups

Upright:

Drunken wandering in dreams. They have many dreams that they wish to obtain. It implies an inability to take action as the real desire is unknown.

Reverse:

Make the decisions to realize your dreams. This person has set guidelines on how best to reach their goal. They take the action necessary to make sure dreams come true.

Eight of Cups

Upright:

Realize the end and move on. By understanding something is over, it implies it is time to leave. It also shows the importance of a clean separation and an attitude of withdrawal.

Reverse:

Try again. Find a new goal and start a new challenge. It implies actively moving forward based on valuable past experiences.

Nine of Cups

Upright:

The wish is fulfilled and the heart is full. The heart is overflowing with a sense of satisfaction by achieving a long sought-after dream or goal. There is rejoicing in the present happiness with a pure heart.

Reverse:

Get caught up in desire and make the wrong judgement. They are overwhelmed with the sheer scale of what they have. They are drunk with joy.

Ten of Cups

Upright:

Happiness in a peaceful everyday life. They are in a state of sincere love for a peaceful daily life far from trouble. It alludes to a gentle heart that has already arrived in a land of rest.

Reverse:

Dissatisfaction builds in a dull life. They feel tiresome in their repetitive life. Day in and day out, boredom fills the heart. The zest of life is gone and the world is growing dark.

Page of Cups

Upright:

An open mind accepts everything. It is time to be flexible. They transform the impossible into possible utilizing a rich imagination as their tool. It also shows the importance of a kind attitude to others.

Reverse:

A weak heart falls into temptation. There are times in which the correct decision is impossible due to a desire. They hide their foolishness and dependence on others.

Knight of Cups

Upright:

The joy of achievement. Finally the goal is going to be achieved. The dream will come true and joy overflows. It is time to start something new.

Reverse:

Sadness facing reality. While they gain their goal through struggling, there is no joy to be found. Unexpected results make the people around them suspicious.

Queen of Cups

Upright:

Accepting and understanding the essence. It is time to maintain harmony with your surroundings while having a clear sense of your will. As the ability to see the true feelings of others matures, understanding and empathy increases.

Reverse:

Accepting and feeling compassion. As they lack their own will, they lose themselves while being drawn to the will of others. Their mind may not find peace and could suffer from sentimental feelings.

King of Cups

Upright:

Exceeding flexibility. There is a time when you can afford to do things wisely. Helping others with a wide breadth of generosity.

Reverse:

Loss of self while being swept away. An opinion can be changed by looking at the complexity of others. Alternatively, their attitude changes depending on those around you. There is no central axis.

Bonus Card

The following is a listing of supporters who backed the making of this deck through the 2021 Kickstarter campaign. The names are of those who pledged for a deck and gave permission for their name to be added to this list

Hope

Is there something small that you've been secretly hoping for but try to forget? The answer is waiting inside of you. Wake them to figure out how to make it come true.

Console

This card is suggesting something that will console you. When you feel blue, look at yourself and say out loud that you are not alone. Remember what is there for you, what you have, what you have accomplished. It could be people and relationships, it could be items, animals or pets. Regardless, something you might have forgotten about yet is worth remembering is always with you.

Sweet Happiness

There is sweet happiness in proximity to you. If you are struggling with harsh times, this card is suggesting that there will be sweet happiness near you, perhaps right around the corner.

Little Trickster

Little Trickster wants to pull your leg. Look for signs where you accidentally put salt instead of sugar, run out of milk when you were trying to eat cookies or forgot to bring ear buds during a long flight! The Little Trickster is not harmful, but beware with this tricky stuff!
